Academic Olympic Studies and Research Centres in the world

14.10.2021

Since the 1980s, a growing number of universities and National Olympic Committees (NOCs) have responded to the academic interest in Olympic-related topics by creating dedicated university-based Olympic Studies and Research Centres (OSRCs). These centres aim to promote teaching, research, publications and conferences about the Olympic Movement and the Olympic Games.

In 2020, the IOC established the “Guidelines for the Academic Olympic Studies and Research Centres”, which aim to provide a clear framework for university-based OSRCs, ensuring full alignment with the Olympic Charter, while respecting their independence in terms of academic activities.

Following the roll-out of these new guidelines and a subsequent individual review procedure, the IOC Olympic Studies Centre is pleased to publish this updated list of compliant academic OSRCs. In doing so, we wish to highlight their important role in creating and fostering interest and knowledge about the Olympic Movement among the university community, and to facilitate exchanges and collaboration between researchers, professors and students who share a common interest in Olympic studies.

The list will be updated regularly as the process for certain OSRCs remains ongoing and other universities create OSRCs in the future.

Should you be interested in creating an academic Olympic Studies and Research Centre, we invite you to contact the IOC Olympic Studies Centre at studies.centre@olympic.org.
